beings or they are for none. Either human rights are for human beings, or they are arbitrary legal constructs, applied to some but not all, at the whim of the powerful. To be "life" is to be "human rights", and the reverse is true as well: to be "human rights" means one must be "life".

Introduction " Human Rights and the Right to Life

Wisconsin Right to Life believes that each human life is inherently valuable from fertilization to natural death. Our mission is: "To make euthanasia, infanticide, abortion and destruction of human embryos socially, ethically and legally unacceptable solutions to human problems and to promote positive alternatives to each of these acts."
