Smoke Component Yields from Room-Scale Fire Tests (NIST Technical Note TN 1453) has recently been published. This was expected to be an important work in developing concentrations and yields of toxicants that could be used for evaluating the usefulness of small scale smoke toxicity apparatuses (or fire models) for use in the prediction of the ...

Analysis of work on smoke component yields from room-scale

This report presents the methodology for and results from a series of room-scale fire tests to produce data on the yields of toxic products in both pre-flashover and post-flashover fires.
